THE 1966 CEDAR LOG

Volume VII

CEDAR CLIFF HIGH SCHOOL

Camp Hill, Pennsylvania

Foreword

"Striving for excellence" has been chosen the theme of the 1966 CEDAR LOG. Excellence has become a key word at Cedar Cliff through the reminders of Mr. Wert and the endeavors of the students, faculty, and administration. It is a subtle excellence that has become not only the goal but the by-product of Cedar Cliff's curricula, athletics and clubs. And it is an excellence which will be a familiar standard in that beyond Cedar Cliff.

The Senior Class Dedicates the 1966

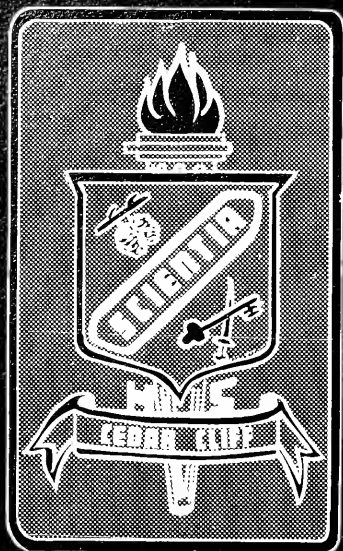

Miss Blanche Slaybaugh

CEDAR LOG to Miss Slaybaugh

Scholarship, patience, and excellence are the ideals which Miss Blanche Slaybaugh exhibits and seeks to instill in her students. As head of Cedar Cliff's English department she serves adeptly in insuring high standards in the school's English courses. As a senior English teacher she works tirelessly to promote increased understanding, knowledge of usage, and sensitivity to the English language and its literature. Miss Slaybaugh has been a member of Cedar Cliff's faculty since the school's opening six years ago and has done much to further excellence in the students, faculty, and English program. To Miss Slaybaugh the class of 1966 dedicates the seventh annual CEDAR LOG--with pride, appreciation, and all the deep respect due to such a person.

Striving for excellence can be seen in every facet of life at Cedar Cliff. It is present in the numerous and indefinable rituals which comprise the everyday life of a student. The morning announcements, the buzz of the classroom, a play in rehearsal, the pep rally before the big game in all these areas of school life the true pursuit of excellence is present. In the fields of athletic, scholastic, and extracurricular achievements the pursuit of high goals brings tangible results. But it is the subtle, yet steadfast, striving for excellence in school life which provides the basis for the high standards pursued at Cedar Cliff.

Commander Charles Conrad Honors

An eager student body awaits the arrival of Pennsylvania's first astronaut, Commander "Pete" Conrad.

Charles "Pete" Conrad and Governor Scranton receive a warm welcome as they arrive at Cedar Cliff.

One of the most memorable and most widely publicized events at Cedar Cliff in 1965 was the visit of astronaut Charles "Pete" Conrad. On the morning of November 10, a motorcade carrying Commander Conrad and Governor Scranton arrived in Colt Stadium, greeted by rousing cheers from the student body. Hailed by Governor Scranton as "the greatest Pennsylvanian ever," Conrad addressed the 2000-member audience. After describing his eight days in space, Conrad laughingly asked for volunteers for the Mars mission. Students reacted enthusiastically to the challenge. The motorcade left the stadium to the sounds of the Cedar Cliff band and the cheers of flag-waving students.

Social Season at Cedar Cliff

Dogpatch came alive on September 25 when seniors sponsored the annual Sadie Hawkins Dance. Cedar Cliff's own Li'l Abner and Daisy Mae, Terry Eichelberger and Patt Conley, reigned over the evening's festivities. When Dogpatchers weren't busy dancing to the music of the Impalas, they were taking their turn being "hitched" by one of the Marryin' Sams, portrayed by the senior football players. As the dance drew to a close, the boys breathed a sigh of relief. They were safe for another year.

Jeanne Grossman, being crowned by Mr. Wert, was elected as C.C.'s queen to the '65 Youth Festival. Other candidates

The Zernbo Mosque was the scene of the Eleventh Annual Youth Festival, held November 26, 1965. In early September, C.C.'s Youth Festival Committee, headed by Chairman Rager Conner and Co-Chairman Sue Schumacher, began working to plan and promote the festival. Jeanne Grossman, Miss Cedar Cliff, was presented at the festival along with 21 other high school teen queens. C.C.'s Minus-One Quartet was selected as one of the five entertainment groups. The nationally-known Four Seasons entertained the audience with their recording hits. The 1965 Youth Festival provided Harrisburg Area youth with a festive and enjoyable evening and aided handicapped youth by donations to the Tri-County Society for Crippled Children.

Jeanne Grassman, a radiant Miss Cedar Cliff, beams with pride as she is presented to the audience.

Connie Stephenson and Her Court Reign

Homecoming Weekend, full of excitement and festivities, was celebrated in 1965 on November 8 and 9. Starting the long awaited weekend, the Colts met Bishop McDevitt in a hard-fought game. During half-time the queen and her court rounded the stadium in open convertibles. Student Council President Marvin Beshore then introduced Mr. Wert, who crowned Connie Stephenson queen.

The following evening the Homecoming Dance, held in the gym, was sponsored by the Student Council. Connie Stephenson and her court, Anne Bair, Cindi Becker, Connie Burkholder, and Paula Hilbish were escorted by Jim Milford, Alan Leonhart, George Stanton, Mike Wharton, and Jan Kirker respectively. The queen was again crowned, this time by Student Council President Marvin Beshore. The couples of the court danced a few measures by themselves and then the audience joined in. The evening drew to a close, leaving happy memories behind for many.

The half-time ceremonies of the Homecoming Game are climaxed by Mr. Wert crowning Connie Stephenson.

Paulo Hilbish and Anne Bair, members of the Queen's Court, glow as they circle the stadium.

Annual Donkey Basketball Results in Fun and Excitement for All

Finding more solid footing on the gym floor than on her donkey, Miss Straw flips the ball to Miss Spittler, who places more faith in her mount.

It's the donkey's turn to score when Mr. Hajak is unceremoniously dumped on the floor.

Strictly adhering to the rules which state that the player must be "on" the donkey to make a basket, Miss Straw attempts a shot.

The Third Annual Donkey Basketball game, sponsored by the Band Boosters, was held Monday, November 28, in the C.C. gym. The men faculty, supported by the varsity cheerleaders, defeated the women faculty, supported by the J.V. cheerleaders, by a score of 24-12.

Besides being a game of skill, it was also a contest of human wit against donkey stubbornness. Some beasts wandered behind bleachers or into the hall while others bucked or refused to move in the ordered direction, all of which gave the elements of a game of tug-of-war and a rodeo all in one. The faculty received more than their share of miscellaneous bumps and bruises and, in the end, had to proclaim the donkeys as the overall winners.

Mr. Pavlovich tries to convince his donkey that the game is not tug-of-war, but basketball.

In Washington, D.C., a busy Edward McKeever is besieged by senatorial phone calls and governmental red tape.

The junior class made its acting debut December ninth and tenth in the comedy, "The Solid Gold Cadillac." Mrs. Jeanne Lutz, play director, and her student assistants, Nancy Nye and Don Payne, spent many evenings with the cast rehearsing lines and staging scenes. The two leading characters, Edward McKeever and Mrs. Laura Partridge, were played by Roderick MacDonald and Sandra Simpson. Others in the cast included Charles Thomas, James Collins, William Wood, Ronald Williams, Karen Krichbaum, Dane Bickley, Mary Jo Garman, Glenda Mapes, Paul Quin, Michael Rupp, David Fields, Beth Yarnall, Dick Schween, Debby Sees, Mary Simmonds, and Sue Unger. The experience gained by these students through this endeavor will aid them in producing a successful senior class play.

Third year art students, Gory Hill and Harper Lontz, decorate a showcase for the Christmas season.

Christmas 1965 at Cedar Cliff was a gay, festive occasion. Ornate trees and artistic decorations were the gifts of Hi-Y's and Tri-Hi-Y's. The art department displayed its talent in stained glass windows and colorful, pointed window scenes depicting Christmas around the world. The traditional Christmas music was presented delightfully in a concert by the various choirs, choruses, and the newly formed string ensemble. Dramatics were presented by the Thespian and Thespian Apprentice groups in the production of "The Other Wise Man." The abundance of contributions made by the student body and faculty members produced a Christmas season of good spirit and cheer.

The Wheel of Fortune, run by Brian Fogarty and JaAnn Hake, is a major attraction at the Senior Class Party, "Carnival."

Seniors Sarah Sayrs and Sheila Palmer discover that the art of apple bobbing is difficult to master.

Cedar Cliff's gym was the scene of the senior party, held January 8, 1966. Complete with all the fun of any fair, "Carnival" featured an apple-bob, penny-toss, and dart-throw, all for small prizes. A dance line of senior boys, a fortune teller, and a fun house were highlights of the evening's amusements. Providing popular music for those who enjoy dancing was a local combo, the Formations. Refreshments consisted of an attractive table of sandwiches, cookies, and drinks prepared by senior girls for the Carnival-goers. The party proved to be one of the most enjoyable social events presented by the class of 1966.

Seniors Demonstrate Ability in

The Class of 1966 displayed its dramatic abilities through "The Little Foxes," a drama by Lillian Hellman, presented February 24 and 25. Under the competent direction of Mr. E. G. McLane and his student assistant, Marcia Smith, ten members of the senior class portrayed an extremely avaricious family living on a southern plantation in the 1900's. Mimi Souders personified Regina Giddens, an unfeeling woman, while her dying husband was played by Ed Ellers. Mark Bgton, Doug Krick, and Margaret Baker assumed the major supporting roles, with Sue Reese, Mike Sheffer, Vicki Sellers, Jack Clausen, and Roger Marquart rounding out the cast. In charge of production was senior Jane Shoemaker. Excellent acting and fine cooperation made "The Little Foxes" one of the most successful productions of the Class of 1966.

As the play opens, the dinner conversation centers around the plans for the mill.

C. C. Hosts Its Third Exchange Student, Vivien Erandio

Vivien Erandio, exchange student from Legaspi City, Philippine Islands, arrived in the U.S. for the first time September 1, 1965, to begin the '65-'66 school term at Cedar Cliff. Vivien was selected by the American Field Service and sponsored by the Student Council after recommendations, examinations, and district, regional, and national competitive interviews.

By staying with two families, Mr. and Mrs. Preston H. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Summers, Vivien was thoroughly introduced to the American way of life. She developed an interest in football and winter sports and joined the Mixed Choir and the Future Nurses. In her classes she worked diligently and in her spare time taught herself to play the piano. Vivien and the students of Cedar Cliff will long remember the experiences and mutual friendships formed during the exchange visit.

Striving for excellence is not only a characteristic of the Cedar Cliff faculty, but a philosophy which it seeks to instill in students. In the classroom the high standard of excellence is evidenced in the course planning and daily teaching. The excellence a teacher expects of his students shows in his assignments, tests, and projects. But in the classroom the pursuit of excellence merely begins. It is during the long hours of correcting papers, preparing tests, or during the lengthy process of gaining mastery of a subject that a teacher's true standards of excellence are revealed. It is in the tireless efforts of advising a club, coaching a team, counselling future college students, or directing a musical group that the literal trials and rewards of the pursuit of excellence are realized.

Mr. Wert Urges All to Strive for Excellence

Mr. Wert has served Cedar Cliff as supervising principal for the school's seven years of existence. In every administrative duty which he has performed during this time, Mr. Wert has exemplified the pursuit of excellence. His managerial responsibilities have included carrying out the School Board's policies, supervising teachers, and overseeing the entire school program. Securing substitute teachers and making purchases authorized by the School Board have been among his other duties. As of July 1, 1966, Mr. Wert will leave his position at Cedar Cliff to assume the responsibilities of Superintendent of the West Shore Joint School System. Cedar Cliff will long remember the efficiency with which Mr. Wert supervised the school and the excellence which he has represented.

Mr. Raymond A. Wert cheerfully executes the business of the day.

Serving as the foundation for Cedar Cliff's educational program is the School Board, whose members are elected by persons living in affiliated areas of the school district. The duties of the board are to decide policies in the operation and administration of the school. Its realm of responsibility includes the selection of the curricula to be followed, appropriation of monies, appointment of faculty members, and the building of additional educational facilities. The School Board, a group of civic leaders, both controls Cedar Cliff's present operations and plans for its future.

Mr. Edwards and Mr. Zitto

Presently acting as supervising principal, Mr. Edwards has been part of the administration since the school's beginning in 1959. Mr. Edwards' assistant principalship gave him the duties of directing guidance, scheduling students, and supervising transportation, cafeteria, grounds, and building upkeep. Mr. Edwards will assume the position of principal July 1, 1966, replacing Mr. Wert. In his jobs as assistant and acting principals, he has established himself as an efficient administrator and a valuable advisor.

Mr. Louis Edwards, acting principal, coordinates teacher assignments with classroom schedules.

Guide Students and Faculty

Mr. Zitto began serving as Cedar Cliff's assistant principal January 1, 1965, and has since continued to function capably in this position. His many responsibilities include supervising the student club program, advising Student Council, scheduling individual students, administering discipline and attendance, and coordinating student activities with Mr. Edwards. Mr. Zitto has proved himself to be an integral and responsible part of Cedar Cliff's administration.

Mr. John A. Zitto, assistant principal, adds a new topic to his file of student activities and affairs.

Courses such as the History of Symphony and Opera, Humanities, and Ancient and Medieval History increase students' working knowledge and appreciation of history and the arts. Students improve their writing abilities through such courses as Journalism and Advanced Composition. Computer Programming and Public Speaking supply students with practical skills, while Personal Law and Family Relations give them usable knowledge. Cedar Cliff's elective courses offer a wide range of opportunities for increasing knowledge, skills, appreciation, and excellence in many fields of study.

The objectives of the academic course of study are to prepare students for further education in college and to instruct them in the basic subjects vital to any field of study: the maths, sciences, and languages. Academic students are those who begin at Cedar Cliff to further their knowledge in the fields which interest them and which will be to their advantage in higher study. They broaden their literary, cultural and historical appreciation in courses such as the Humanities, Ancient and Medieval History, Advanced Composition, and Greek and Roman Classics. Through its courses and requirements the academic course strives to instill an excellence in its students which will prepare them for the new challenges and opportunities of higher education.

Business

Cedar Cliff's business education course includes extensive curricula which prepare students for future business careers or further education. Students are trained in the basic subjects of math and science as well as in the practical skills of shorthand, typing, and bookkeeping. The business curriculum is divided into three separate courses in which specific areas of business are pursued: stenographic, bookkeeping, and clerical selling. Included in these courses are subjects such as secretarial training, transcription, office machines, and filing, consumer education, business law, clerical practice, principles of selling, and merchandising. Through its extensive training Cedar Cliff's business course prepares students with an excellence necessary to meet the needs of a progressive business world.

Industrial Arts

Cedar Cliff's industrial arts course is comprised of courses in three separate areas of workmanship: wood shop, metal shop, and graphics shop. In the wood shop boys learn the arts of furniture making, carving, upholstery, and carpentry. Skills learned in the metal shop include electric arc and gas welding, machining of metal, tool and die making, working with sheet metal, and casting and pouring metals in the foundry. The graphics shop offers training in drafting, engineering drawing, and shop sketching. In the print shop, where both letterpress and offset printing are done, the actual skills needed in printing are put into practice. The industrial arts course is of immeasurable value to those students, interested in an occupation in one of these fields studied at Cedar Cliff.

Lab experiments, or experiences, which afford students the opportunity to become familiar with electricity theories, include studies in static electricity, Ohm's law, circuits, electromagnets, capacitance, inductance, resonance, and amplifiers. Projects in the course include making power supplies, oil-band and short-wave radios, and test equipment. Practical experience in TV and radio repair work and the use of various electronic equipment and a study of electronics in related industries also are components of the course. Guidance

Guidance personnel perform a variety of valuable services for students at Cedar Cliff. The counsellors advise students on the selection of courses and adjustments of schedules. They serve as consultants for any study problems which students may have. They are responsible for aiding students in obtaining employment and advising them on possible occupational fields. During students' senior year they counsel on future plans and perform the time-consuming task of writing out transcripts and recommendations for various colleges and universities. Striving for excellence has become a familiar process by the time a student is a senior. During his three years at Cedar Cliff he has sought excellence in the areas of scholastic, athletic, and extracurricular achievements. He has enriched his experience and broadened his understanding through his pursuits. A senior has the advantage of having learned at Cedar Cliff the meaning and importance of striving for excellence. This idea of aiming for the highest in everything he does has become a basic part of his philosophy. His leaving Cedar Cliff is not an end to his pursuit of excellence; it is merely a beginning.

Striving for excellence in sports means pursuing the goal enthusiastically, despite the defects which may block the road. Recording a good season is only one measure of excellence. True sportsmanship and a zealous team spirit are others. In all sports—football, hockey, basketball, cross country—excellence is pursued through long hours of rigorous training and practice. Then during the actual game—the culmination of these hours—the team strives its hardest and gives its best. These standards set in athletics are worthy of remembrance in all endeavors. For giving one's best despite defeat is the true essence of excellence.

Pro-Style Offense Victories

With an opening victory over Central Dauphin and important wins over Williamsport, William Penn, and Reading; the Colts ended the '65 campaign with a fair, 4 and 6, overall record.

By posting a 21-19 victory over the Rams from C.D., Coach Craig's forces established another first for Cedar Cliff. Desire and teamwork paid off for the Colts as they finally halted the six year winning skein that the cross-river rival had held over C.C.

Also highlighting the season was the Colts' impressive 14-12 victory over the Tigers from William Penn. Penn's speed and overall ability placed them as the favorite but the Varsity Eleven rose to meet the challenge and crushed the Tigers with their potent ground attack.

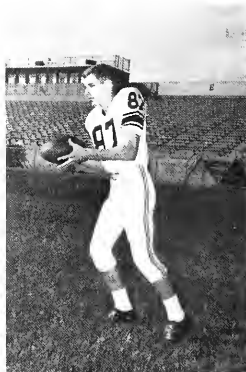

A rocked-ribbed defense and a consistent ground game once again this year proved to be the mainstays of the Colt's game. With spirit and drive being maintained throughout the year, this year's varsity completed another fine season, which both students and coaches can feel proud of.

with 0-9 Season

With only one returning letterman and a heavy loss due to graduation, this year's edition of the Colt Cross Country team suffered through a tough season.

Although Coach Wolfe's boys lacked a great deal of experience, they did show some promising signs for the years to come. Meet after meet, the Colts gamely challenged the veteran runners of the Central Penn Cross Country League, without once giving up. Also, by following a rigid practice schedule consisting of conditioning drills and long distance running, the boys developed both in ability and attitude.

Despite the constant pressure of many defeats, the team always maintained their fine morale and finished the season knowing that they had done their best.

The Cross Country team limbers up for a meet by doing jumping jacks.

Winning the bully which begins play, Carral Atzeff heads Cedar Cliff towards a goal in the Mechanicsburg game.

Game after game the hockey teams this year continued to strive for excellence achieving it in spirit and sportsmanship, rather than in actual wins. Twice this season a rainy day and a muddy field served as the setting for hard fought victories; varsity football was postponed, but hockey was played! Many hours were spent learning team plays, strategies and tactics. Conditioning and scrimmaging taught the girls the value of team play and effort. Miss Nye's varsity had only one victory but did, however, have a commendable record of 2-1-2 at Playday. This annual event is a day devoted to short matches in which most of the Central Pennsylvania teams participate. The hockey teams this season proved that excellence is achieved by more than just victory.

With a new coach, year, and team, the sixteen girls composing this year's varsity basketball team compiled a 4-10 record. Although not a winning season, Coach Straw felt the team showed definite improvement in team-work and spirit as the season progressed. Co-captains Judy Tritt and Karen Brunner gained individual honor at the Lower Susquehanna Play-day where they attained positions on the first all-star team. Judy also broke the school's scoring record for girls with 204 points in one season. By attending a workshop at West Chester State, team members learned new skills and gained additional on-court experience. Although wins were few in number, the team continued to strive for excellence in the true spirit of C.C. athletics.

Following a rather bleak first half, the 1965-66 edition of the C.C. roundballers sprang to life in second half competition to capture four victories in the tough Central Penn Basketball League. Under the guidance of Coach Pavlovich, the Colts showed continuous improvement throughout the campaign. By twice defeating Steel-High, last year's Eastern Regional Champion, the Cedar Cliff quintet established themselves as a threat to all league opponents. Paced by the eight senior squad members, the team also gained much recognition by posting second half victories over highly touted York and Lebanon. Through their keen competitive spirit and desire for improvement, this year's squad members were able to create a team that the coaches, faculty, and students of Cedar Cliff could feel proud of.

Cedar Cliff Grapplers Win Thirty Straight League Matches

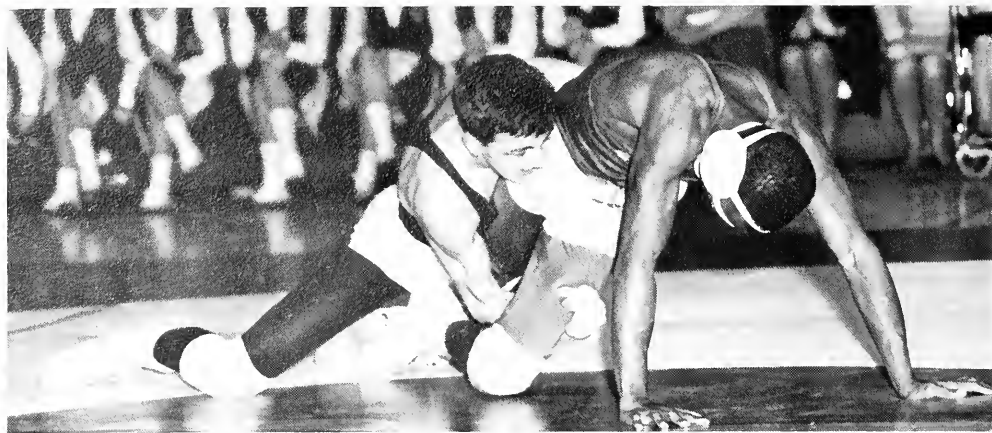

Tightening the chicken wing on his opponent, Barry Yontz upholds his undefeated record in dual competition.

For the fourth consecutive year the Colt grapplers proved to everyone why they are the team to beat in Division II of the Harrisburg Area Wrestling League. With a perfect 7 and 0 log in league action and a 13 and 1 overall record, the 1966 wrestling squad established itself as one of the finest teams ever produced at Cedar Cliff.

Led by returning varsity lettermen, Bob Brinley, Jim Poole, Ron Smith, Barry Yontz, and Terry Kiner, the Colts ran roughshod over their outclassed league opponents. In posting their seven victories, this year's grapplers also extended their present string of league wins to a remarkable total of thirty straight. Also, in post-season tournament action, the Colts made a fine showing with six boys being crowned as sectional champions.

Through their many hours devoted to conditioning and practice, the Colt matmen once again reached the championship status, traditional of Cedar Cliff wrestling.

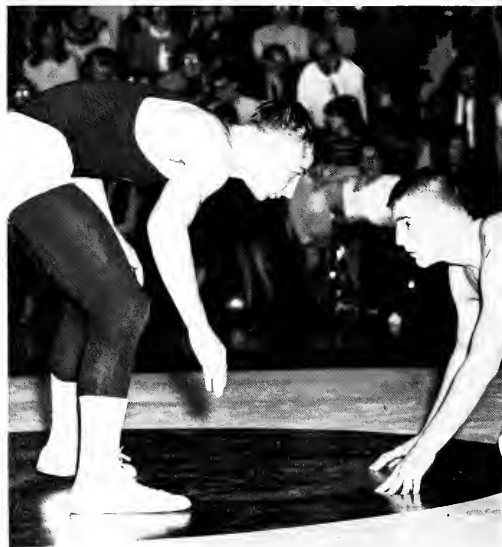

C.C.'s 138 pounder, Ron Smith, keeps his struggling opponent in check with a firm leg hold.

Cheerleaders Generate Enthusiasm and Promote School Spirit at Cedar Cliff

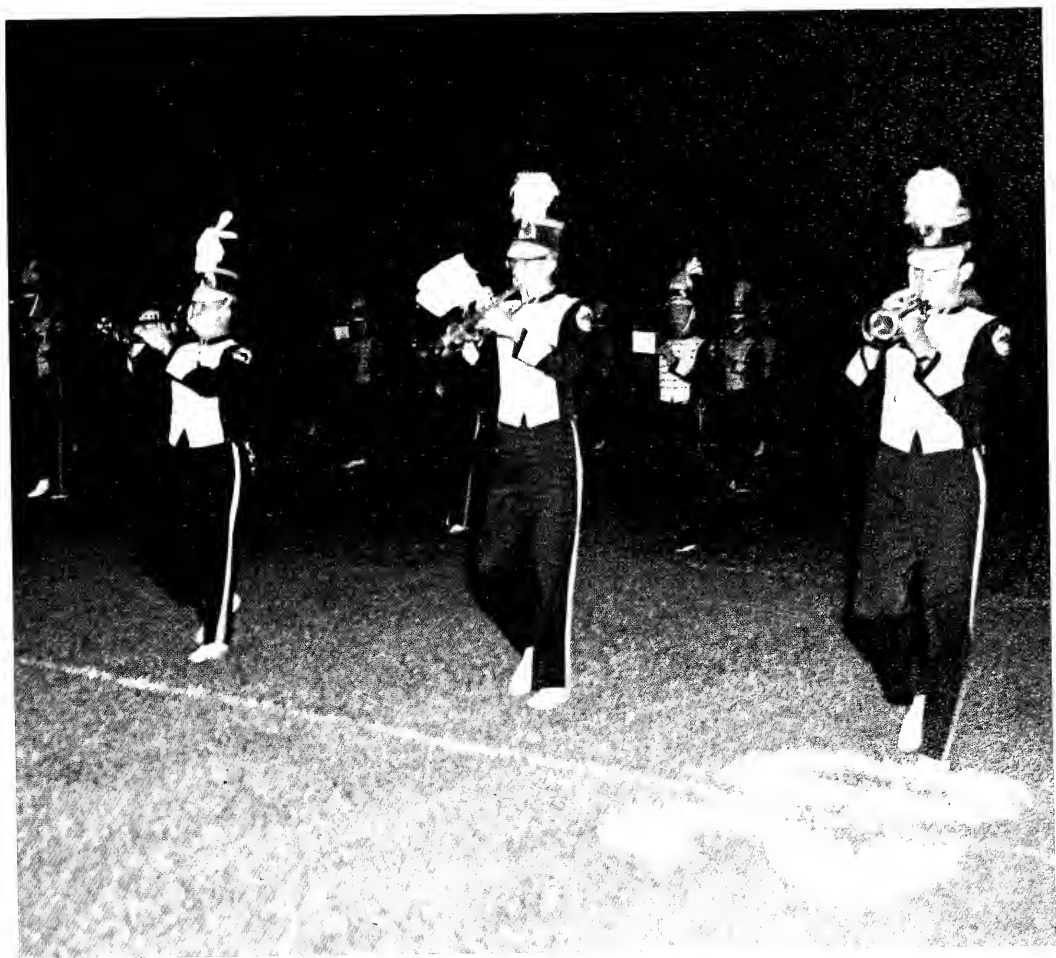

The male presence in C.C.'s cheerleading squad sets it off from other area schools. LEFT TO RIGHT: Steve Fritz, Marty Kitzmiller, Fred Gorton, and Art Worley.

Encouraging the student body's spirit and enthusiasm for sports is the job of the fourteen girls and four boys who compose the cheerleading squad. Throughout the fall and winter, cheerleaders attend and cheer at all football games, girls' and boys' basketball games, and wrestling matches. This year's members of the squad also added their special skills to the faculty and donkey basketball games. Along with cheering, their other services include selling "shakies," school jackets, and bumper stickers, as well as holding pep rallies. In each athletic contest the cheerleaders create an air of enthusiasm and support for Cedar Cliff's teams.

Striving for excellence is evidenced not only in scholastic and athletic endeavors, but also in Cedar Cliff's clubs and activities. Whether in the fields of music, art, foreign language, electronics, or drama, students channel their efforts and enthusiasm into a pursuit of excellence through these activities. This striving for excellence can be seen in the concerts, debates, projects, dances, and programs which result from student efforts. The high goals set in student clubs and activities are not to be under-rated. For it is the pursuit of excellence in activities beyond the classroom or athletic field which better prepares us for the future.

Students Earn Honors for Student Council

Homeroom and class presidents unite to form Cedar Cliff's student government, the Student Council. The Council functions under the leadership of President Marvin Beshore, Vice-president Steve King, Secretary Barb Kessler, and Treasurer Jim Poole.

The 1965-66 Council conducted many activities of student interest. Cedar Cliff's third exchange student, Vivien Erandio, was Council-sponsored. The organization planned Homecoming Weekend, Student and Teacher Recognition Days, and a talent show. The Council also was instrumental in having the student cheering section moved closer to the 50 yard line in the stadium. All Council activities were financed by profits from picture sales and Coke machine profits.

The Student Council was created as a governing body, and its members have made it an active, productive, and useful organization.

Scholastic and Leadership Qualities

Honor Society

The highest scholastic honor which Cedar Cliff can bestow upon any one of its students is membership in the National Honor Society. This highly selective organization places great stress on scholarship and inducts only those students with highest achievements in this area. The cardinal principles of the Society, along with scholarship, are character, leadership, and service. The emblems of this organization are the keystone, a symbol of strength of character, and the torch, a symbol of the light of learning. Those who have attained an over-all average of 93% at the second semester of the junior year are screened for possible admittance into the Society. This average, the Society's four principles, and the individual's conduct are considered. Acceptance into the Society represents achievement and honor for its members.

Youth Forum

The sixth annual Capital Area Youth Forum brought together representatives from 29 area high schools to discuss subjects of vital concern to today's youth. This year's theme was "A Challenge to Youth: Where Do We Stand?" It was presented through discussion of five major topics: education, U.S. foreign policy, domestic governmental problems, society pressures and morality. A cabinet consisting of one representative from each school directed Youth Forum planning, while two senators and one representative per 50 students made up individual school representation. Senior cabinet member, Doug Marinak, chosen one of five main speakers, summarized youth's opinions and recommendations on American foreign policy. Cedar Cliff senators John Kanhaus and Jim Byerly coordinated our school's participation in Forum activities. Culminating three months of classroom, panel and informal discussion, the 1966 Youth Forum answered questions of importance to the area's 30,000 senior high school students.

La Societe Honoraire de Francais is an honorary organization of students studying the French language who, at the time of induction, have attained a minimum average of 92 per cent in their third or fourth year. A student may be invited to join the society after he has fulfilled this requirement. The Cedar Cliff chapter is supervised by Mrs. Thelma Marks, head of the Foreign Language Department. Membership at Cedar Cliff includes fifteen Seniors and seven Juniors. The purpose of the society is to give recognition to those students who have achieved high standing in their study of French.

The club members, who all have a journalistic background, write articles about Cedar Cliff activities to be published in area newspapers. By presenting many varied musical performances the Mixed and Girls Choirs, under the direction of Mr. L.P. Williams, provide a valuable service to Cedar Cliff.

Members of the Mixed Choir, chosen each spring by tryouts, meet twice a week during activity period for rehearsal. This year the choir participated in the Thanksgiving assembly, Spring Band Concert, and Baccalaureate service. Their largest projects were the Christmas assembly and the annual musical, this year Lerner and Loewe's "My Fair Lady."

The Girls Choir, which meets once a week, gives those interested in music a chance to participate in Cedar Cliff's musical activities. Girls in the choir participate in the Christmas Assembly and usher for the operetta. Both choirs give students the opportunity to gain musical experience and training and provide Cedar Cliff with many excellent musical productions.

Student pianists, Dave Binkley, Kay Hoffman, and Beverly Baublitz, accompany the Mixed Choir and Ensemble at rehearsals and concerts.

Business Staff

Raising funds necessary to publish the CEDAR LOG is the sole responsibility of the Yearbook Business Staff. Advised by Mr. William Lutz, the staff members visit local businesses to sell advertisements for the yearbook. Patron tickets are also sold to students and area residents. These activities, as well as the staff-sponsored March Hootenanny featuring Cedar Cliff talent, serve as the chief sources of income for the CEDAR LOG. This organization not only provides the funds for Cedar Cliff's yearbook, but also gives its members the chance to gain insight into the operations of local businesses and the importance of advertising.

Editorial Staff

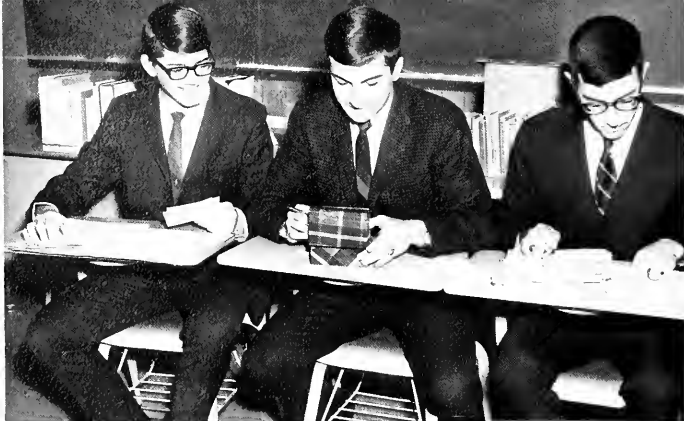

Led by editors selected from the Journalism III class and advised by Mr. Bruce Smith, the Yearbook Editorial Staff worked all year to produce the 1966 CEDAR LOG. Research in various yearbooks and photography magazines brought new ideas for pictures and layouts to add originality to the CEDAR LOG. Captions and copy blocks were written, edited, and proof-read by staff members. Final copies of headings, captions, copy blocks, and write ups were made by the typists to be sent to the publisher. Working together, the editorial and typing staffs produced the seventh annual CEDAR LOG, an adventure in excellence.

Debate Team

Debating the topic "Resolved: that the federal government adopt a program of compulsory arbitration in basic industries," the 1965-66 debate team produced an excellent season. Culminating twenty-three debates was the affirmative team's winning of the league championship. Alan Leonhart, Mark Barton, and Sam Miller, affirmative team, and Barry Yinger, Rex Bickley, and Ed Eilers, negative, spent endless hours researching and discussing the topic from all possible angles with Mr. Waite, team advisor. The teams debated on a schedule alternating from week to week between league and non-league matches. Through the debate team, which has brought honor to Cedar Cliff, the members have gained considerable experience in public presentation and extemporaneous speech.

Novice Debate

Eight neophyte debaters comprise Cedar Cliff's Novice Debate Team. These novices will be next year's varsity team. Mr. Laurence Waite, the team's advisor, coaches the members—two seniors, two juniors, and four sophomores—in parliamentary procedure and debate techniques. The group observes varsity teams in actual debate and gains practical experience by taking part in debates with other novice teams. The novices also debate the same topic as the varsity teams and through comparison can improve their debating technique.

Thespians

The Thespian Society has established and promoted standards of excellence in all phases of the dramatic arts. Included in its activities are participation in dramatic productions, speech contests, the Drama Festival, Repertory Theater, and Children's Theater.

Membership in the club, directed by Mrs. Jeanne Lutz, is awarded to students who gain an amount of points established by the National Thespian Society. Points are gained by participating in backstage work, major or minor roles in dramatic productions, and in public speeches.

The Thespian Troupe has given students an opportunity to further their dramatic skills as well as afford Cedar Cliff with many excellent presentations.

Apprentice Thespians

Through the Apprentice Thespian Club, under the direction of Mr. E.G. McLane, students gain experience in acting, stage craft, and make-up application. Groundwork is laid to enable students to gain the points required for membership in the Thespians the following year. Members learn how to speak and act for plays by participating in the highlight of the year, the Christmas Assembly, and in one act plays held in the spring. They also present impromptu speeches in practice for the P.H.S. S.L., listen to lectures given by various guests, and make numerous visits to the Arena House.

Auditioning for P.H.S.S.L., Beverly Baublitz presents a poetry selection for constructive criticism by the Apprentice Thespian Club.

Latin Club

ROMA, the Latin Club, acquaints students with the civilizations of Greece and Rome and helps them understand and appreciate the influence of these cultures on the world of today. One way in which this objective is fulfilled is by the presentation of programs dealing with all phases of classical civilizations. ROMA, which opens its membership to any student studying the Latin language, also is a chapter of the nationwide Junior Classical League. This year the club's annual trip was made to the Roman Festival, which was sponsored by the Classical Association of Philadelphia. ROMA gives students an opportunity to gain a broad background and understanding of the nature of Greek and Roman civilizations.

Spanish Club

The Spanish Club, under the direction of Mrs. Georgia Dobbs, is open to any student who is currently studying the Spanish language and is interested in learning more about the customs of Spanish-speaking countries. Each week members of the club present programs in the form of films or talks about Spanish customs, games, and songs. Every year the club supports an orphan with money received from various activities. All students taking Spanish are invited to attend the Spanish Club Banquet, a festive event which features a delicious Spanish meal, entertainment, and a guest speaker. Throughout the year all activities of the Spanish Club aim to increase students' knowledge of Spanish ways and customs.

German Club

Bringing German culture, customs, language, and history to interested Cedar Cliff students is the function of Der Deutsche Verein. To accomplish this, meetings are conducted in German, except for the business, and German entertainment consisting of skits and records is presented. With the advice of Herr Natschke the club secures funds for their various projects throughout the year. With this money they present a dance and an annual banquet, an event which the German Club originated at Cedar Cliff. For their end-of-the-year trip the club traveled this year to Washington, D.C., to tour the German Embassy and to visit other places in Washington of interest to German students.

Le Cercle Francais, under the guidance of Mrs. Thelma Marks, affords French III and IV students with additional conversational practice through business meetings conducted in French. In this club many excellent opportunities are provided to widen students' cultural scope by gaining enjoyment and appreciation for French music, art, language, and amusements.

In the spring the club held its sixth annual banquet. French students dined in a Parisian atmosphere and enjoyed French entertainment, which featured the Can-Can boys. The club's final event of the year was a picnic at which plans were made for next year's club program.

CLIFF SENTINEL, Cedar Cliff's school newspaper, is responsible for relating all current news events to both the faculty and students. It is published six times a year, under the direction of Mr. James Gourley, by a staff comprised of students interested in and trained in Journalism. Sports, current events, social matters, and timely editorials appear in each issue. All written material and page layouts are handled by the student staff members with an approval from the advisor. Each year, all members connected with this club are given the opportunity to attend a three day press conference which is held at Columbia University. With a thorough background in the field of newspaper journalism, this club serves as a valuable asset to Cedar Cliff's program.

Bridge Club

The Bridge Club, under the direction of Mrs. Judy Norrie, is geared for those who wish to gain experience and improve their bridge game. Each club period is spent actually playing the game, giving members knowledge of how to cope with different situations that arise. Mrs. Denison and Miss Hiltner assist Mrs. Norrie by playing bridge with the members and advising them in especially difficult predicaments. The small membership of the club, in which there are no officers, dues, or business meetings, enables each player to receive the experience and attention he needs in learning to bid and play his cards to his advantage.

History Club

The History Round Table strives to further knowledge in the areas of history which most interest club members. Dr. Brinton, club advisor, lectures on historical material which normally would not be covered in the classroom. Throughout the year the club has guest speakers, views motion pictures, and plans trips to locations of historical importance. Often these trips are taken in conjunction with other groups. One such trip to Washington, D.C., was made in November with the Honor Society. Members of the club alternate in arranging bulletin boards or show cases on historical events of interest to Cedar Cliff students. The History Round Table provides C.C. students with opportunities for increasing their knowledge beyond classroom curricula.

Employment Opportunities

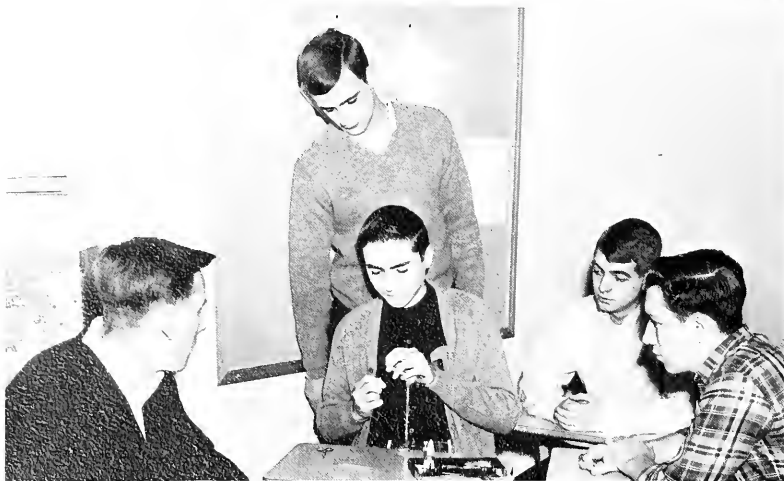

Created to prepare students for the business world, the Employment Opportunities Club acquaints boys with local industries and employment procedures. Club members are required to maintain satisfactory grades in all subjects to be eligible for the club trips, which are arranged by Mr. Thomas Corbett, advisor. This year the club visited five area industries and several businesses in York. Funds raised from a car wash helped finance trips. At some meetings personnel managers of business establishments were invited to speak to the club about their company and its employment requirements. The Employment Opportunities Club not only benefits students but acquaints local industries with the curriculum at Cedar Cliff.

Angling Club

The objectives of the 17-member Angling and Conservation Club are to keep members acquainted with latest angling equipment and techniques, and to promote conservation and sportsmanship in the outdoors. Club advisers, Mr. Robert Abram and Mr. William Cornwell, encourage an interest in angling and acquaint the boys with fishing laws. As a special project, a stream near Silver Springs was cleaned, made suitable for fish and fishing, and stocked by the club. Highlighting club activities was a banquet held at the end of the year at the West Shore Country Club which brought together local angling groups. Through practicing conservation of the area's waterways and wildlife, members of the Angling Club learn the essentials of good citizenship and sportsmanship.

School Store

Under the guidance of faculty advisor, Mr. Fred Ballen, the School Store provides students with experience in business essentials. Senior manager John Bohr and twelve students from all classes are responsible for a mobile unit which visits home-rooms daily. From this unit students are able to purchase diversified items. Other responsibilities include setting up a concession stand during dances or athletic events held in the gym and taking orders for pictures which students purchase. All profits from the school store help to finance the yearbook.

Electronics Club

The Electronics Club has been formed this year to give students an opportunity to share and develop their common interest in electronics. The members use test equipment in repairing and constructing projects or experiments, take field trips, show films or listen to guest speakers at meetings. Club members also investigate electronics as a career and learn of its use in business. Under the leadership of Mr. Edward Rogowicz, this club provides valuable practical experience for boys interested in electronics.

F.H.A.

Cedar Cliff's chapter of the Future Homemakers of America gives interested girls an additional opportunity to learn about the many phases of homemaking. The members learn various ways to help them as future homemakers, from shortcuts in pattern cutting to new recipes. During the year, the club completes projects such as selling cookbooks and baking Christmas cookies for needy families. The club sponsors the Faculty Christmas Tea every winter, visits nursing homes, and holds bake sales. Throughout the year the members also enter cooking and sewing contests. With its competitions, projects and practical experiences, the Future Homemakers of America prepares its members for futures as homemakers.

Future Nurses

Preparing and acquainting students with a future in a medical field is the purpose of the Future Nurses. As a nationally federated organization, it affords members with many opportunities and responsibilities for understanding the nature of a medical career. The club hears many speakers who provide stimulating information about various medical professions.

The year's first activity was a trip to Waynesboro for a state convention, attended by Mrs. Devenney and four club members. Among their standard projects are traveling to Clairmont Farms to entertain the patients and making Easter baskets for the State Hospital. This year the Future Nurses' special project was sending two Christmas baskets: one to a soldier in Viet Nam who is a Cedar Cliff graduate and one to a graduate nurse from the Harrisburg Hospital School of Nursing who is serving in Laos.

F.T.A.

The Future Teachers of America club provides experience in teaching and a preview of the profession for students interested in this field. The club, advised by Mr. Jahn Goodyear and Mr. Cornelius Rodgers, is comprised of students from both Cedar Cliff and Red Land high schools. Activities during the year are slated to help members gain an understanding of the aspects of teaching. Members participate in Student Recognition Day and the Cadet Teaching program, both of which furnish experience in classroom teaching. It is hoped that the Area Convention of the Future Teachers of America, held this year at Red Land, will become an annual project for the club. By providing varied opportunities to learn of the career of teaching, the club is an invaluable service to its members.

Miss Lack, the club advisor, instructs club members in various phases of business education which are not prescribed in their curriculum. Through her teaching, members gain knowledge that will be valuable in their future vocational lives. Besides furthering the students' knowledge in the field of business, the club also provides opportunities for members to develop their social backgrounds through various social activities.

Creative Writing

Members of the Creative Writing Club, under the supervision of Mrs. Carol Diffenderfer, apply the fundamental writing techniques every Friday during activity period. From the beginning of the year the students analyze styles of writing and gain a knowledge of material organization and word usage. Student members explore different approaches to creative writing by the study of fellow students' work. Creative Writing Club is a valuable supplement to the basic English courses and helps develop an awareness of the need for effective communication and verbal expression. In addition to providing a means for creative self-expression, the club encourages the use of effective writing skills in all school assignments.

Serving students and teachers, the Library Club performs various duties which help to keep the library running smoothly. Library volunteers give up free periods to assist in such services as repairing and shelving books, preserving pamphlets, aiding in compiling bibliographies, erecting bulletin board displays, and performing desk duties. The club has at least one special program a month: regular meetings, however, are devoted to individual committee work. Several social functions, including a Christmas party and a spring barbecue, are held during the year. The services performed by Library Club members help make the library an orderly source of reference while teaching the members useful library skills.

Gym Clubs

Two Cedar Cliff clubs serve those students interested in gymnastics. The Boys' Gym Club was organized by Mr. Robert Craig to give boys the opportunity to pursue their athletic interest beyond the gym class. This year Miss Virginia Nye introduced a new club giving girls the same gymnastic opportunities. The girls' and boys' clubs practice various skills including tumbling, free exercise, and practice on various apparatus such as the rings, trampoline, horse, Swedish box, and parallel bars. Two field trips highlighted the activities of the girls' year: one to West Chester for a clinic devoted to free exercise and floor routines; another to Shikellamy High School for an exhibition of gymnastic skills. Through these clubs C.C. students are able to develop gymnastic techniques and are afforded added time for recreation.

ENCOUNTER

Cedar Cliff's field of publication was enlarged this year with the addition of ENCOUNTER, a creative arts magazine. Two highly successful issues of the publication, a winter and a spring edition, were produced under the co-editorship of seniors Caryn Daue and Barbora Kessler. The magazine features poetry, short stories, essays, and art work by both students and faculty. It is published entirely at Cedar Cliff, the printing being done by the Graphics Arts Department under the direction of Mr. John Clements. ENCOUNTER staff members include Donna Grundon, art editor; Ed Eilers and Mark Barton, circulation managers; and Tom Miller, business manager. Mr. Terrence V. Palmer, Jr. worked with the student editors in an advisory capacity. ENCOUNTER, the school's newest endeavor in expression, represents another product of excellence at Cedar Cliff.

Thalians

Through the Thalians, junior girls have the opportunity to learn the fundamentals of social etiquette. Guided by Mrs. Dorothy Kirkpatrick, the girls discuss the social problems confronting today's high school students. At each meeting the girls practice using the knowledge they have learned in order to become socially adept. Activities throughout the year include holding a tea for the seniors, sponsoring a unique dance, serving as hostesses for Alumni Night, and attending the dinner for the entire club at Allenberry Playhouse. The Thalians serve as a valuable aid to the school while providing the members with practical social knowledge and experience.

Pep Club

The Pep Club provides a vital service for Cedar Cliff. Its primary function is to inform the student body of up-coming sports events and encourage student participation and support. This year the Pep Club sponsored two pep rallies in addition to designing and producing signs and posters for student buses and home athletic events. One of the year's more notable projects was the lobby bulletin board which the club kept pasted with articles from local papers pertaining to Cedar Cliff and its students. Under the direction of Miss Nancy Karlheim, the club was especially active this year, working hard to instill student spirit and pride in Cedar Cliff.

Varsity Club

Through the service done in preparation for all athletic events, the Varsity Club plays a vital role in the sports scene at Cedar Cliff. Every Friday, under the guidance of Mr. Henry Gasull, the club carefully plans its schedule for the upcoming week's sporting events. The requirement for membership is that each boy must have earned at least one varsity letter in any of the sports offered at Cedar Cliff. As an added attraction each year, this organization sponsors a faculty game, the proceeds of which are donated to a special athletic project. This year all profits were forwarded to the All-sports Banquet, a yearly event open to anyone who has participated in a Cedar Cliff sport.

Eagerly and cheerfully, these Varsity Club members set up bleachers and clean up the gym prior to a home basketball game.

Assistance at Sports and Social Events

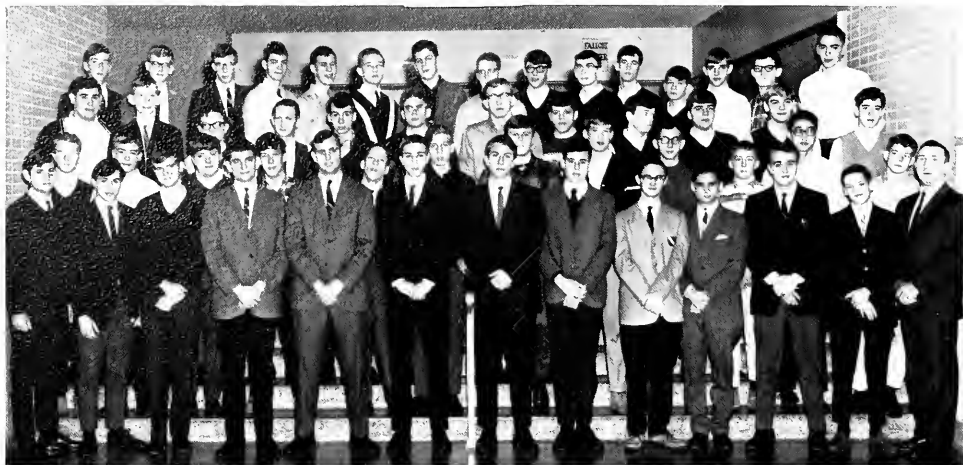

51 Club

One of the major service organizations at Cedar Cliff is the 51 Club. Under the supervision of faculty advisor Mr. Angelo Gallo, the club is composed of girls from each grade. The major services of the club include vending candy at basketball games, and selling refreshments and programs at all home football games. Profits obtained from the club are used to buy sweaters for each senior letter winner and pay for a trip to the Ice Capades and Ice Follies for club members. The 51 Club serves Cedar Cliff sports spectators and, at the same time, gives its members valuable experience in merchandising.

The Key Club is an organization open to those boys willing to render services to others and help better the community. Under the supervision of faculty advisor, Mr. Paul Paxton, the club is operated in conjunction with the West Shore Kiwanis Club. By selling candy each year, the club earns money for its annual convention, which was held in Philadelphia this year. 1965-66 club projects included helping needy people in the community and building a bookshelf for the school. Through its club programs and projects, the Key Club helps members develop an interest and understanding of business, service, and community work.

Printing Club

Students interested in the finer aspects of printing exhibit their talents through the newly formed Printing Production Club. Under the guidance of Mr. John Clements, head of the industrial arts department, club members develop necessary skills and techniques in this field. Along with most of the school stationery and forms, this group prints programs for many special events including operetta, band concerts, class plays, and all winter sports. The five members not only devote their Friday club periods but also much of their spare time to perform these services for Cedar Cliff.

During an activity period John Dick and George Kramer, members of the Printing Production Club, run off posters for Alumni Night.

Key-Dettes

New to Cedar Cliff this year are the Key-Dettes, under the supervision of Miss Doris Straw. The club is composed of girls from each grade and is open to those interested in hearing area businessmen tell about their work and their role in the community. The Key-Dettes meet periodically with the Key Club for programs and motion pictures, supplied by the West Shore Kiwanis Club. This year both clubs presented a public service program at Christmas entitled "Star of Bethlehem."

Stage Crew

Preparing the stage for various assemblies or dramatic productions and operating the record player at school dances are some of the invaluable services extended to the school by the Stage Crew. Under the direction of Mr. Ernest Ober, the club learns to use machines, tools, and electrical equipment properly. Members are instructed in lighting, setting, and prop procedures while learning to work well together. Without the services of the Stage Crew, the required lighting and stage effects of Cedar Cliff's many productions and activities would not be possible.

Math Club

One of the more academically advanced and specialized clubs at Cedar Cliff is the Math Club. It is designed for those interested students who want to develop and expand their knowledge of mathematics. Guided by club advisor, Mr. Lehman, the members find their individual needs met and interests satisfied at the club's weekly meetings. The programs are organized according to the interest of the group. Members capably handle many advanced topics including the use of the slide rule, methods of surveying, and the operations of calculators. Problems which members may have in their daily math classes are shared with the club and discussed for possible solutions. Completing the agenda of the math club's program is mathematical games, which provide both recreation and help in strengthening mathematic ability.

Computer Club

Under the guidance of mathematics teachers Dr. Smeltz, Mr. Kostukovich, and Mr. Stoner, Cedar Cliff's Computer Club provides members with an opportunity to learn how to program and use the school's L.G.P. 30 Computer. During the club period students are able to expand their experiences with computer programming beyond what is received in the classroom. Members learn the application of computer programming to the solution of problems in the fields of mathematics, science, and business. Anyone interested in learning the complexities of the L.G.P. 30, as well as gaining valuable experience in using it, is invited to join the club.

Biology Club

The Biology Club, under the direction of Mr. Fred Howard, is open to any student who is interested in biology. The opportunity is presented to students who demonstrate aptitude and sincere interest in biological science. Action and enthusiasm are the key requisites for success in the club. Included in the program are field trips for collection and preparation of laboratory materials, preparation and classification of museum specimens, development of new laboratory procedures for sophomore biology classes, assistance in laboratory functions, and finally, the opportunity for introductory research in some areas of biology. The activities of the club will be beneficial to those who intend to take biology in college.

Courses and Increase Student Interest

Astronomy club member Wesley Hendershot locates the constellation Sagatta as Mr. Eshenower, Ray Hoover, and Jim Russell observe.

Astronomy Club

Under the supervision of Mr. Samuel Eshenower, the Astronomy Club studies theories and mythological origins of many constellations. The club supplements the science courses for those students interested in pursuing further a study of stars. Considerable use is made of Cedar Cliff's planetarium and its facilities by the club. Through the club's studies and activities with planetarium equipment, its members gain a deeper understanding of the universe.

Junior Sue Smith lacks her foot into place under the watchful eyes of fellow Ski Club members Dave Whitney, Dick Whitney, and Carol Rinehimer.

Ski Club

A new group, the Ski Club, became a part of Cedar Cliff's vast club program this year. Several interested students, headed by twin brothers Dick and Dave Whitney, were responsible for the birth of the club. Each Friday the members of the club travel to a nearby ski resort where they receive skiing lessons from a trained instructor. Their weekly programs consist of various films featuring expert skiers and talks by noted authorities on skiing. Through these activities the Ski Club is able to provide ski-minded students with a basic understanding and knowledge of the sport.

Students Display Special

Dance Band

Mr. Kenneth Sampson, band director, and Greg Thomas, student director, lead the Dance Band in rehearsals and engagements. Members are selected by Mr. Sampson for outstanding ability displayed in regular band rehearsals. Activities of the Dance Band, which are varied, include participating in talent assemblies at Cedar Cliff and performing at a number of outside engagements. The group is invited by various organizations to play for occasions such as dinners and dances, and each year takes part in the District Band Competition. The Dance Band provides an opportunity for the school's talented musicians interested in popular music to display their abilities in a smaller, organized musical group.

During activity period, the Cedar Cliff Dance Band holds a practice session for the upcoming state band contest. Treasuries

Two treasuries, open for business every activity period, centralize the handling of money for the school. The Athletic Treasury, an essential part of Cedar Cliff's sports program, keeps records of all athletic receipts and expenditures, writes checks, and makes deposits.

The Central Treasury handles money for class funds and forty different organizations including clubs and special activities. One major task of the Central Treasury is the collection of budget and distribution of it to participating organizations. Both treasuries serve to coordinate Cedar Cliff's numerous budgets.

The pursuit of excellence becomes a familiar phrase to underclassmen during their first two years at Cedar Cliff. Through the reminders of Mr. Went and individual course teachers, they come to understand the meaning and value of striving for excellence in all endeavors. As they learn and mature, they also produce excellence. In their dramatic presentations, athletic events, social activities, and scholastic achievements. And as they approach their senior year, underclassmen are ready to meet the challenges of the final year of advancing, preparing, and excelling for the future.

With great expectation the Class of 1968 entered Cedar Cliff. They faced new problems of adaptation, independence, and responsibility. Never before had they attended a school so large, where there were so many unfamiliar faces. Many of these problems were solved during the two days of Orientation. Early in November, class officers were elected. Later in the year, the class voted on class colors, flower, and motto. When the ballots were counted, sophomores had selected green and white, white carnation, and "We enter to learn; we leave to serve." The Executive Committee began planning the Class Party, held April 2. This party was a new experience for many sophomores unaccustomed to the etiquette involved with a semi-formal dance. Now, well acquainted with the school, its rules and routines, and the responsibility of high school, sophomores are prepared to begin their junior year at Cedar Cliff.

A little older and a little wiser, the Class of 1967 began their second year at Cedar Cliff. As sophomores, they chose burgundy and camel as the class colors, the Talisman rose as the class flower, and the motto, "Confidence is the companion of success." Late in the spring of their sophomore year they elected class officers for the '65-'66 school year. The first job the Junior Executive Committee had was the preparation and production of "The Solid Gold Cadillac." Held on March 12, the Junior Party was an informal affair for the enjoyment of all juniors. On May 21, the Zembo Mosque was the setting for the Junior Prom, the climax of the underclassmen's social season. Now, with two years of high school behind them, the juniors look to the future and their senior year at Cedar Cliff.

It is through advertising that any type of publication is made possible. It also is through advertising that the excellence of a community's free enterprise is shown. The staff of the CEDAR LOD would like to extend its thanks to all the area businesses who have given the yearbook support through their advertisements. The students of Cedar Cliff appreciate this support and display it by continuing to patronize these enterprises.
